Supplement to the publication standards for the Proceedings of the Lausanne Colloquium

Index locorum

Following the decision made by the AIPMA General Assembly on Thursday, September 14th, an index of sites will be included at the end of the Acts.

To facilitate this effort, we request that authors provide a list of sites mentioned in their contribution to the Acts along with the contribution itself. The list should be in the language of their contribution.

Please observe the following format:

- In the contribution, give the sites names in the language of the article. Names requiring a transcription into the Latin alphabet shall be transcribed according to the standard given in the country in question, or, barring that, according to the usual transcription in the language of the article.
- In the list of entries for the index: the name should be in the language of the article or transcribed according to the rules stated above. The usual ancient names are accepted.
- For urban sites offering a numbered location of buildings, give the name of the city, numerical location in parentheses, and then the name of the building.

Ostia (I iii, 3-4), House of Diana
Pompeii (VI 7,23), House of Apollo

Summaries

As stated in the publication standards sent earlier, abstracts are to be written in English, with the following preferential lengths:

Posters: 1000-1500 characters, including spaces.
Communications and syntheses: 1500-2000 characters, including spaces.

Thank you in advance for taking this information into account and for providing the requested list of sites.
