General remarks

0. Relation of the Word questionnaire to the online survey

For this fifth edition, final data entry will be made via an online survey which features exactly the same questions as does the Word questionnaire. This Word version of the questionnaire is only foreseen to act as a backup version for the online questionnaire, which might be needed for data gathering and collation before the final data entry session. If you wish to forward this Word version to persons assisting you in filling in the questionnaire, please make sure to always send a full copy, even if the person in question will only provide data for one chapter, and stress the importance of referring to the definitions section as this applies to all chapters.

1. Periods covered by the statistics

- 1.1 The reference periods or dates may change depending on the subject. Some tables cover several years. For example, in Table 1.1 (offences recorded by the police) separate data are requested for 2007, 2008, 2009, 2010, and 2011. Other tables refer solely to 2010.
- 1.2 If information is not available for the date (or year) requested, please give information for a date (or year) as close as possible to that requested, and indicate clearly the date (or year) of the information you have given. Please also indicate if the information supplied is provisional or has been estimated.

2. Please make every effort to avoid ambiguity in replies

- 2.1 For any particular item for which you cannot reply, please state whether the item does not apply to your country (e.g. refers to a concept which does not exist in your criminal law or statistical system), or whether no figures are available. In other words, do not leave any question blank.
- 2.2 Each item should be accompanied by one of the following references:
  - A number, which may be 0. Zero means the cases are null (e.g. no homicides during that year)
  - An asterisk (*) to indicate that the statistical information is not (yet) available or that the question / concept does not apply.
  - Do not use signs whose meaning is not explicit, such as '-', '/', etc. Avoid using abbreviations such as 'n.a.' without an explanation.
- 2.3 Where a breakdown is requested (for example, by type of offence) and figures for one item cannot be supplied, please do not simply answer 'information not available'. Instead, indicate in the comments whether you have counted these cases (for which you have no breakdown) under another heading or under the total or whether you have not included them in the breakdown.

3. Back up your replies with additional explanation where appropriate

- 3.1 In the questionnaire, you are asked to comment on the tables and definitions. Do not enclose additional documents although some text clarifying your replies may be helpful. This might be particularly useful where you feel that more explanation is needed on a definition supplied.
- 3.2 In the case of time series, please explain any gaps (missing data, major changes in orders of magnitude from one year to another) and variations in trends (observed over several years). Reference should be made to major legislative, administrative and even political developments, which may explain such trends. The same is true for changes in statistical recording.

- 3.3 You are also asked to indicate the source of the data supplied for each table. These indications should be in English or French, and should consist solely of the following: if the data are unpublished: name of the institution and source department; name of the statistical system used; if the data have been published: name and date of the publication.

Example:

Source: Ministry of Justice - Directorate of Prison Administration - Department of Communication, Studies and International Relations: National Register of Prisoners, not published.

or

Source: Based on data taken from 'Crime in England & Wales 2010/11'.

If the source is available online, please also provide a link to the website where the data can be found.

4. Please meet the deadline: 1 January 2013

The procedure for collecting international statistics is necessarily complex: collection at the national level of data from the various services or departments, centralisation with the regional co-ordinators (who check the validity of the figures, return them as necessary, and correct them), processing, production, interpretation and distribution. This is a long chain of events. If there is too great a lapse of time between the reference date for the data and their processing, statistics lose much of their value.

5. Relations between national correspondents and the regional co-ordinators

Where difficulties arise, the regional co-ordinator should be informed, for example where the definitions used in the questionnaire appear to you ambiguous or where the deadline for replies cannot be met.

6. Access to the data

All the information compiled from the national correspondents will be made available in the final, accepted and validated version via the website www.europeansourcebook.org. Based on this data, the 5th edition of the European Sourcebook will be published in print and online. There will also be a specific publication on the results of the EU project. The names of national correspondents will appear in the Sourcebook, the project publication and on the website as contributors.

In conclusion, any comments on this questionnaire are welcome.

THANK YOU FOR YOUR HELP

Introduction

1. Contents

1.1 The questionnaire comprises the following sections:

Definitions

Part 1 Police statistics

Part 2 Prosecution statistics

Part 3 Conviction statistics

Part 4 Prison, probation agencies and supervision statistics

Part 5 National victimization surveys

Comments on the questionnaire

1.2 Each part contains tables for entering data and a set of questions. Questions may be 'closed', i.e. when you are requested to choose one of the suggested replies, or 'open', i.e. when you are requested to draft your own reply. A box is provided after each set of questions for any comments or additional information.

1.3 In addition, there are four important concepts that may be perceived differently. Here is some guidance on how they should be interpreted:

> When are the data in this table collected for the statistics?

It is important to determine when the data collection takes place in the criminal justice process. For example, as regards police statistics, great differences exist depending on whether data are recorded when the offence is reported to the police (input) or at a later date, for example when the police have completed their investigation (output).

> Is a principal offence (or principal sanction) rule applied?

It is essential to know the counting system used in cases of simultaneous offences. For example, how do the statistics reflect the case of an offender who in the course of theft also causes damage to property? Where a principal offence rule is applied, the statistics will show one offence. Where there is no such rule, there will be a separate count for each offence. As regards Chapter 3.2, the recording of sanctions may be according to similar rules.

> How is a person who is suspected or convicted for multiple offences of the same kind (often called serial offences) counted?

Cases of multiple or serial offences can also pose problems. For example, if a woman reports to the police that her husband has beaten her ten times in the last year, is this recorded as one or as ten offences?

> How is a person suspected of or convicted for more than one offence in the same year counted?

Problems may finally occur for persons who have multiple contacts with the system in the same year, e.g. a person being suspected or convicted for theft in March and then again for bodily injury in October. Is such a person counted twice or once only?

Definitions

A Offence definitions

The following definitions are not legal definitions. They merely serve to make international statistical comparisons as feasible as possible and to help in providing the figures for the tables contained in this questionnaire.

The general definition of each offence will be complemented with a list of specific items, some of which you are requested to include in or (where appropriate) exclude from your figures. These include and exclude rules are meant to deal with special forms of criminal behaviour for which it might be arguable whether that behaviour can still be subsumed under the standard definition. Therefore, in relation to the standard definition, these are only additional rules: Usually, there are more forms of behaviour that are covered by a standard definition than named in the list following the definition. Therefore, in a case of doubt not solved by the include / exclude rules provided, always make your decision whether to include or exclude that type of behaviour based on the standard definition itself. Where necessary, provide a comment on the issue in the questionnaire and / or discuss it with your regional coordinator.

An example: For homicide the standard definition is intentional killing of a person. You are asked to include assault leading to death, euthanasia, infanticide and attempts and to exclude assistance with suicide, abortion and negligent killing. You are here required to:

- 1) Try to meet the standard definition fully, i.e. in our example include all intentional killings (i.e.: not only the ones covered by the list).
- 2) Answer the include/exclude questions for the arguable cases and try to follow the given rules.

Another goal is to identify differences between the definition used for police statistics and the definition used for convictions statistics. For each specific item, we ask you to indicate

(1) Whether you included it in or excluded it from police statistics

→ In the tables, please mark an 'X' in the appropriate incl. or excl. column.

(2) Whether you included it in or excluded it from conviction statistics

→ In the tables, please mark an 'X' in the appropriate incl. or excl. column.

The figures reported for each offence should include attempts as well as completed offences.

For each offence, use the figures which come as close as possible to the relevant definitions. Please use the comments box provided for each definition for additional remarks, where necessary to understand the figures.

If the definition has changed between 2007 and 2011, please give full details in Section B 'Changes in offence definitions'.

The same should be done if there are any differences between the answers given in the fourth edition of the European Sourcebook (published in 2010) and the answers you are giving in this questionnaire regarding the definitions.

You do not have to comment on a definition for an offence if you are not able to report data on it anywhere in the questionnaire. In such a case, just enter "no data available" into the comments box.

In principle, all offences subject to criminal proceedings should be included. This rule is, however, not trivial: There are some countries which follow a minor offence concept either excluding such offences from the criminal code (for example the wykroczenia in Poland in cases of minor thefts etc.) or making them subject to special proceedings (for example most contraventions in France which are handled by the police only) outside the criminal justice system. Sometimes they are recorded in police statistics, sometimes not.

General remark for sexual offences: Please note that – based on the experiences made during the 4th edition – the relation of sexual offences to each other has been revised. While the definitions of both rape and sexual abuse of a child (called sexual abuse of a minor in the 4th edition) have remained unchanged, sexual assault has been changed to a general headline category covering all physical sexual contacts with persons against their will or with those who cannot validly consent, especially children. Rape and sexual abuse of a child are subcategories of this new definition of sexual assault. If this structure does not reflect the legal situation in your country, please try to still follow the concept as close as possible by adding up all cases of rape, sexual abuse and other sexual assaults to give the total number of sexual assaults.

Data entered into this questionnaire for sexual assault will typically not be comparable with data provided for the 4th edition.

1.2 Characteristics of suspected offenders

Table 1.2.1 Total suspected offenders

The counting unit required here is the person. The table should therefore show the number of suspected offenders. As a rule, a person suspected of more than one offence in a year will be counted more than once (see Introduction paragraph 1.3). A principal offence rule (again, see Introduction paragraph 1.3) should be applied, if possible. The 'Total for criminal offences' should refer to the number of suspects for all offences and not just the offences mentioned in this table.

Part 2 Prosecution statistics

The counting unit required here is the case (in the sense of proceedings relating to one person only) dealt with by prosecuting authorities. One case may combine several offences; one offence may lead to several cases. Where the use of the case as the counting unit is not possible, proceedings (i.e. not necessarily related to only one person) should be used. If both do not apply, the person is the counting unit. Persons are counted if each suspect is counted only once each year, although there might be many proceedings against him or her in the given year.

What is the counting unit used?

D2CUA11

1	2	3	4

It is important to distinguish between 'input' and 'output' statistics. In addition, the figures for pending cases, i.e. those cases that enter the prosecution stage in the reference year but are not disposed of in the same year should be provided if possible.

Definitions
Input cases: All cases of criminal offences which are passed to the prosecuting authority for disposal in the reference year Output cases: All disposals made by the prosecuting authority in the reference year Pending cases: All cases pending at the end of reference year Connection between input, output and pending cases: For each year: <math>\text{Output} = \text{pending of previous year} + \text{input} - \text{pending of current year}</math>

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Cases dropped, conditionally disposed of or sanctioned by the police (see below, question 2.2.J)</li> </ul>	D2CC11C

The differentiation between ‘cases brought before a court’ (formal charge) and the different types of prosecutorial decisions is not simple. It depends on how far the court is involved in the public prosecutor’s decision-making. For example, the prosecutor may be empowered to impose conditions for dropping the case, with or without the court’s consent.

In other cases, sanctions can be imposed by the public prosecutor (or by the court, but on application of the prosecutor and without a formal court hearing). These lead to a formal verdict and count as a conviction (e.g. a penal order – Strafbefehl in Germany, where the prosecutor brings a motion for a fine to be issued by the court after a summary review). This could be regarded (or counted in the statistics) as a sanction of the public prosecutor or a case brought before the court. If possible, it should be counted as a sanction imposed by the prosecutor.

2.3 Persons whose freedom of movement was restricted in 2010

This Table refers to decisions through which movement of persons has been restricted before final conviction during 2010 while they were, as suspects, under criminal investigation. Such measures can be ordered by the police, the prosecutors, the court or, in some cases, other authorities.

Decisions made outside a criminal procedure (such as, e.g., measures of constraints against illegal immigrants), should, if possible, be excluded from this Table. If it is not possible to exclude these cases, please give us a figure in the box after question 2.2.A.

If data for 2010 are not yet available, please give data for the latest available year and indicate the year of reference in the table. Please use flow data, if possible. If using stock data instead, please state the reference date in question 2.2.B.

Part 3 Conviction statistics

3.1 Persons convicted

The counting unit in the following tables is the person convicted. Therefore, the number of persons convicted for the offences listed in the tables in this section should be indicated. The conviction means that the person was found guilty, according to the law, of having committed an offence and therefore has a criminal record.

As a rule, a person convicted more than once in a year of having committed an offence will be counted more than once.

3.2 Sanctions and measures imposed

The following tables ask you to provide data on sanctions and measures imposed upon all persons (i.e. adults and minors) together (Tables 3.2.1.1 and 3.2.1.2) and separately on sanctions and measures imposed upon minors (Tables 3.2.2.1 and 3.2.2.2). In order to maintain consistency across tables, if possible, please use the same age range for minors already used in table 3.1.2. If there are no data available on sanctions and measures imposed on minors or they cannot be separated from adults complete Tables 3.2.1.1 and 3.2.1.2 leaving Tables 3.2.2.1 and 3.2.2.2 blank.

3.2.1.1 Total persons receiving sanctions/measures in 2010

The 'Total' for criminal offences should refer to all persons receiving sanctions/measures for all offences and not just the offences mentioned in this table. As in Tables 3.1.1 and 3.1.2, data should refer to convictions only. If data for 2010 are not yet available, please give data for the latest available year and indicate the year of reference in the table.

The counting unit here is the person. Therefore, the different subcategories should sum up to the total. In the case of multiple sanctions imposed on one person at the same time, please refer to the most severe sanction imposed (principal sanction rule, see Introduction [paragraph 1.3]). In addition, a principal offence rule should be applied for the breakdown by offences (see Introduction [paragraph 1.3]).

3.2.2.1 Minors receiving sanctions/measures in 2010

The 'Total' for criminal offences should refer to the number of minors receiving sanctions/measures for all offences and not just the offences mentioned in this table. As in Tables 3.1.1 and 3.1.2, data should refer to convictions only. If data for 2010 are not yet available, please give data for the latest available year and indicate the year of reference in the table.

The counting unit here is the person. Therefore, the different subcategories should sum up to the total. In the case of multiple sanctions imposed on one person at the same time, please refer to the most severe sanction imposed (principal sanction rule, see Introduction [paragraph 1.3]). In addition, a principal offence rule should be applied for the breakdown by offences (see Introduction [paragraph 1.3]).

Table 3.2.3 Persons convicted by length of unsuspended custodial sanctions and measures imposed in 2010

The length to be taken into account is the length of the initial unsuspended custodial sanction imposed by the courts, not the actual time spent in prison. Indeterminate sanctions or measures should include all custodial sentences (other than life) where no sentence length has been imposed by the courts. Average sentence length should be calculated only for custodial sentences whose length is known (i.e. excluding life and indeterminate sentences). If possible, this should be the sentence given for the most serious offence. If it is not possible to show the sentence lengths as indicated, use the row 'Other sentence lengths' to show what sentence length bands are available. If the court imposes a custodial sentence that is ab initio partially suspended and partially unsuspended, the length reported here should be the length of the unsuspended part of the sentence.

If data for 2010 are not yet available, please give data for the latest available year and indicate the year of reference in the table.

Part 4 Prison, probation agencies and supervision statistics

4.1 Prison population

Stock data should refer to the situation at 1 September of each year. This date has been chosen because it is the one used for the Council of Europe Annual Penal Statistics (SPACE)<sup>9</sup>. If data are not available for this date, please specify the date chosen.

The tables cover all penal institutions, of whatever nature, that come under the responsibility of the prison administration: institutions for those held in pre-trial detention on remand and institutions for sentenced prisoners, including those reserved for special categories (e.g. institutions for minors and hospitals run by the penal administration). If, for any reason, certain penal institutions are excluded, please give the reasons.

Part 5 National victimization surveys

The goal of this section is to collect information on the national victimizations surveys conducted in each country. The results of these surveys will not in themselves be comparable because their methodology may differ. Please note that only national surveys are concerned (e.g. surveys with a national representative sample); it is not necessary to report on ICVS (International Crime Victim Survey) / EU ICS (European Union Crime and Safety Survey) data. In order to assure comparability with other types of crime data included in the different editions of the European Sourcebook, the data collected here cover the period 1990 to 2010. Data are asked for 5 different victimization surveys (1990, 1995, 2000, 2005 and 2010). If no surveys were conducted during these years, please provide data from the closest available surveys. If no victimization surveys have been carried out in your country, please answer only question 5.1.A.

5.1.A Availability of national victimization surveys

Does your country conduct a periodical national victimization survey? A51NSA11		Yes	No
		1	2
	If yes, please indicate the periodicity (e.g. annual, every two years, etc.?)	A51NSB11
	If no, has your country ever conducted a national victimization survey? A51NSC11	Yes	No
		1	2
	If yes, when? (please indicate all the years in which such surveys took place)	A51NSD11

Additional comments on question 5.1.A

A51NSE11

Definitions

Survey modes:

PAPI (Paper and pencil interview): Face to face interviews using a paper questionnaire.

CAPI (Computer assisted personal interview): Face to face interviews using an electronic questionnaire.

CATI (Computer assisted telephone interview): Telephone interviews using an electronic questionnaire.

CASI Personal (Computer assisted self-interview): Self-administered questionnaires filled by the respondent during a personal meeting with the interviewer.

CASI Postal (Computer assisted self-interview): Self-administered questionnaires sent to the respondent by mail.

CASI Other (Computer assisted self-interview): Self-administered questionnaires filled by the respondent in a different way than the two previous ones.

CAWI (Computer assisted web-interview): Self-administered questionnaire filled by the respondent through the Internet.

Other (please specify).

Measures of victimization:

Prevalence of victimization in the last 12 months/last year: Number of households/persons victimized per 100 households/persons interviewed (usually expressed as a percentage).

Incidence of victimization in the last 12 months/last year: Number of incidents of victimization per 100 households/persons interviewed.

Measure of victimization reported to the police:

Percentage of victims that reported their victimization to the police.

Units of reference:

Persons: For personal crimes (bodily injury/assault, sexual assault, theft of personal property, robbery and corruption), the unit of reference is the person interviewed. Thus, prevalence and incidence measures are expressed as the number of persons and the number of incidents per 100 persons interviewed.

Households: For the rest of the crimes (domestic burglary, theft of a motor vehicle), the unit of reference is the household of the person interviewed. Thus, prevalence and incidence measures are expressed as the number of persons and the number of incidents per 100 households interviewed (in the case of domestic burglary) or per 100 car-owning households interviewed (in the case of theft of a motor vehicle).

Types of victimization:

The types of victimization are defined taking as a reference the definitions used in the International Crime Victim Survey (ICVS). However, minor modifications have been introduced to some of the ICVS questions –which include the definitions of the offence– and their wording has been slightly adapted in order to cover a period of reference of one year. Thus, for each type of victimization, we provide a question similar to the one included in the ICVS and we ask you to indicate whether the question included in your national victimization questionnaire corresponds to it or not. If it does not correspond, we ask you to provide the question used in your national questionnaire.
